MESSAGE

I am pleased to learn that Directorate of Coordination Police Wireless (DCPW) is organising a national conference of "Heads of Public Protection and Disaster Relief (PPDR) Organisations".

Technology is changing at the speed of thought, ushering in rapid transformation transcending all sectors. This has also necessitated for us to be robust and proactive in our preparedness to effectively deal with a host of new challenges. We need to address and provide solutions to issues such as spectrum management, implementation of 4G Long Term Evolution (LTE) for Public Protection and Disaster Relief ensuring safety and security holistically.

From having holistic view of challenges and pinpointing problem areas to coming up with efficient solutions, we need to take leverage of technological advancements. Besides, there is a need for increased cohesion among stakeholders in the execution.

The national conference will hold in-depth discussions, take a comprehensive look at preparing a blueprint of the strategy and make a sincere effort to address security concerns. The gathering of experts from the fields of communication, software, equipment and information technology will get an opportunity to share the latest advancements and best practices. To add more value to the Conference, follow up could continue through working groups that would greatly help in improving effectiveness of the exercise.

I wish the deliberations at the conference all success in its endeavours.
